We are all
the same

Blood+Lines is a series born during the pandemic.

The consequences of our encroachment on habitats and polluting and warming of the earth are becoming starkly clear. We have created conditions ripe for the ascendance of cross-species diseases, among other things. There has always been this notion of a line separating us from “the animals.” It’s time to see that that line is actually a connector.

In recognition of all the beauty that's still on this planet.
